

Help more local families enjoy every little moment together

Because the little things are the big things

When you're facing the greatest of challenges it's the smallest of moments that matter.

A bath at bedtime. A swim on a Saturday afternoon. Maybe just a few hours uninterrupted sleep. All these things become even more precious when you have a child with a life-shortening condition.

The care that we offer children and their families in their own homes and in our hospice means that families get to enjoy more of these little things. That could mean spending an easy and relaxing afternoon together as a family. Or it could mean parents and carers being able to enjoying a well-earned break from the round-the clock responsibilities of caring for a sick child.

We provide support for the whole family including information and advice, play therapy and counselling, specialist short breaks and emergency care.

And, when the time comes, our team are there to support the entire family at the end of the child's life, giving them the opportunity to say goodbye in their own time and their own way.

It's the little things that matter

And we want more children and families across Brighton & Hove and all of East Sussex to enjoy them.

“

The boys have been able to enjoy wonderful experiences thanks to Chestnut Tree House but for us it's the little things like being able to spend time reading, swimming in the pool and creating happy memories together as a family, that are the really big things. Those precious moments together mean the world to us.
